Two Day Workshop on
“R Programming Language”
(16/10/2015 & 17/10/2015)

R is a complete, interactive object-oriented language designed by statisticians for statisticians. Objects, operators and functions of R help in exploring, modeling, and visualizing data naturally. Being open-source, it is freely usable and allows for integration with other applications. As a Community, R has included more than 20 leading statisticians and computer scientists, thereby packages being added are extensively used by more than 2 million users globally. Norman Matloff highlights that R is useful for archaeologists for tracking the spread of ancient civilizations, for drug companies to discover which medications are safe and effective, and actuaries for assessing financial risks and keep economies running smoothly.

R in industries and research
Google uses R for ROI calculation on advertising campaigns, Twitter for monitoring user experience, Ford for improving design of its vehicles, The New York Times for creating infographics and interactive data journalism applications, Firefox for web activity visualization (Ref: http://www.revolutionanalytics.com/companies-using-r) etc. As data intensive applications are emerging more, there is good demand for people having R language skills in the industries.

Workshop Objectives & Coverage
Workshop will cover topics on :
- What is R?
- Why R?
- Statistical Computing in R
- Visualization
- Analysis
- Significant Packages in R.

Sessions will be handled by academicians and industry people with Hands-on-training apart from lectures. Workshop is open to faculty and students of academic institutions and interested persons.
